Matsue, Shimane Prefecture

~off the beaten path~

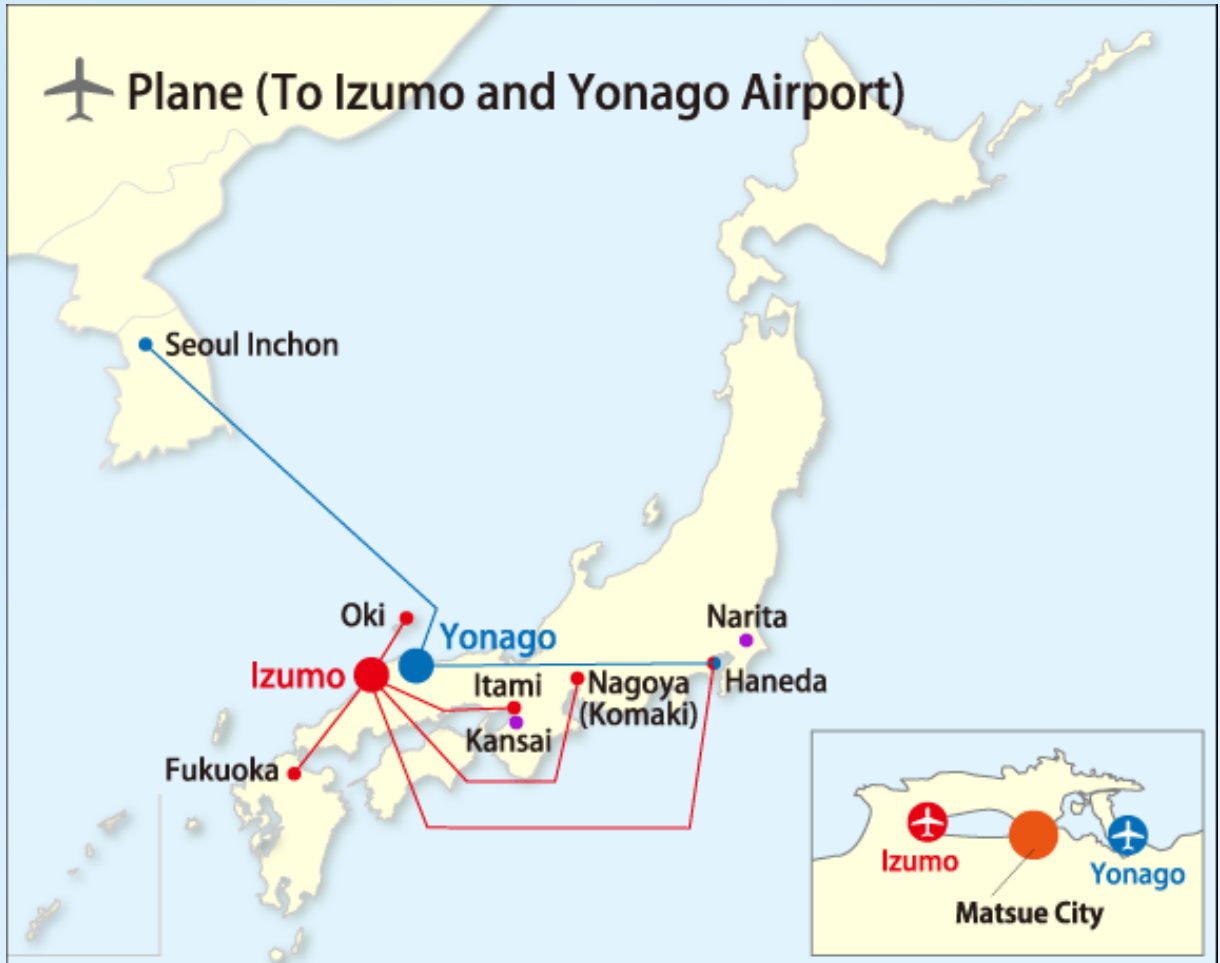

Matsue is the capital of Shimane Prefecture, which is located in the south-west of Japan's largest island. Matsue is located between the sea of Japan and two lakes, so it is known as a city of water.

Surrounded by beautiful nature, Matsue was built as a castle town. Since 1611, Matsue castle which is designated as a national treasure in 2015 has been the symbol of our city. Around the castle, there are many historical buildings, and no high-rise buildings to spoil the view. So taking a walk in those areas, is like slipping through time.

In addition, Matsue is the birthplace of Japanese culture and origin of conventions in Japanese Mythology. Today, you can still visit the entrance to the underworld and the shrine that all Japanese gods gather to hold meeting once a year. The city is totally different from big city, such as Tokyo, Osaka, or Kyoto where you can know Japan's today. If you already visit those cities, next destination would be Matsue to know the beginning of Japan.
